Investment Process

The Nexus Global Dynamic Portfolio is an actively managed, globally diversified, equity portfolio. The manager has the mandate to seek value globally and is not constrained by benchmarks. Stock selection is driven by a firm understanding of an individual company's underlying business fundamentals and how they relate to an ever-changing world. It is important to consider the interplay of monetary and fiscal policies around the world and how significant changes in these policies may affect equity markets. High conviction ideas are generated by a combination of internal and external research and quantitative and technical analysis. Owning equities and investing in the stock market allows an investor to participate in the future growth of the world. A diversified and liquid portfolio of equities will benefit in an ever-changing and growing world economy, where innovation and technological advances continue to drive new investment opportunities. One of our objectives is to identify future trends and themes using our internal analytical capability and to find ways to allow the Dynamic Portfolio to participate.

Market Commentary

February saw Trump tariff fatigue weigh on US equity markets, as both the S&P 500 and the tech-heavy NASDAQ experienced declines. The so-called Magnificent Seven – Apple, Microsoft, Amazon, Alphabet, Meta, Nvidia and Tesla – were anything but, as six of the seven ended the month in red. In contrast, China and Europe posted strong gains, despite President Donald Trump's persistent tariff threats.

Fixed income markets were positive for the month with the US beginning to price in an economic slowdown. Commodities and crypto had a mixed month, with gold positive, while oil and Bitcoin declining. Bitcoin has experienced a sharp drop and has erased most of its Trump election victory inspired gains. European equity markets were led higher by defence stocks, as European nations continue to pledge ever higher defence spending. President Trump's recent press conference with Ukraine President Volodymyr Zelensky will add to those spending pressures, as the US seems to be on a path to reducing its financial and military support for Ukraine. In response, Europe will need to step-up to try and fill the void that will result from this reduction in aid.

It's worth highlighting that since Trump's election victory, European defence names have outperformed the Magnificent Seven. The Chinese equity market has been driven higher by their tech names with Alibaba, now seen as a new AI darling, up over 60% year to date.

Following Trump's election victory, it was anticipated that he would usher in a new era of lower taxes, reduced regulation, secure the US border, and implement tariffs to incentivise foreign manufacturers to build more factories in the US. Forty days into his administration, we have witnessed a flurry of executive orders, many of which are being fought in federal courts, and a confusing volume of tariff threats most of which would have negative impacts on US consumers and industry.

Chinese President Xi Jinping has recently shown public support for the tech industry and its leaders after shunning them for the past five years. Chinese monetary policy remains very loose, with the government continuing efforts to boost consumption.

In Europe, low valuations combined with the ECB's ongoing interest rates cuts create an attractive combination. Europe has also seemingly awoken from a slumbering policy malaise and is now striving to enhance competitiveness.

As we have highlighted previously, we are not overly exposed to the Magnificent Seven and continue to favour exposure to European defence names and China.

Important: the value of investments and the income from them can go down as well as up. You may not recover what you invest.
