Strategy Objective

The Nexus Global Dynamic Portfolio is an actively managed, globally diversified, equity portfolio. The manager has the mandate to seek value globally and is not constrained by a benchmark.

Investment Process

The Nexus Global Dynamic Portfolio is an actively managed, globally diversified, equity portfolio. The manager has the mandate to seek value globally and is not constrained by benchmarks. Stock selection is driven by a firm understanding of an individual company's underlying business fundamentals and how they relate to an ever-changing world. It is important to consider the interplay of monetary and fiscal policies around the world and how significant changes in these policies may affect equity markets. High conviction ideas are generated by a combination of internal and external research and quantitative and technical analysis. Owning equities and investing in the stock market allows an investor to participate in the future growth of the world. A diversified and liquid portfolio of equities will benefit in an ever-changing and growing world economy, where innovation and technological advances continue to drive new investment opportunities. One of our objectives is to identify future trends and themes using our internal analytical capability and to find ways to allow the Dynamic Portfolio to participate.

Market Commentary

Global equities delivered modest gains in February, although performance diverged markedly across regions and sectors. U.S. equities underperformed global peers for a second consecutive month, weighed down by weakness in megacap technology and software stocks. In contrast, market leadership broadened beyond U.S. mega caps, with cyclical and asset-heavy sectors outperforming growth-oriented and software names.

Late in February, the U.S. Supreme Court upheld a lower-court ruling that found President Trump's use of the International Emergency Economic Powers Act (IEEPA) to implement tariffs unlawful. In response, the administration moved quickly to invoke alternative legislation to justify replacement tariffs, leaving overall tariff levels broadly unchanged. However, this approach risks placing a number of existing trade agreements in conflict with the new measures. The Court did not rule on whether the approximately $175 billion of tariffs already collected under IEEPA should be refunded, though hundreds of U.S. companies have filed claims seeking reimbursement, adding further uncertainty to the outlook.

Geopolitical risks intensified as the U.S. and Israel launched another round of strikes against Iran, with President Trump appearing to pursue regime change in Tehran. Such an escalation could have significant ramifications for the oil and gas supplies and their prices, putting upward pressure on commodity prices in general possibly encourage yet more defence spending. War is expensive, and the associated economic dislocations may also reinforce longer-term inflationary pressures. In this environment, our portfolio positioning should help us navigate rising energy prices, heightened geopolitical risk and persistent inflation pressures.

Important: the value of investments and the income from them can go down as well as up. You may not recover what you invest.
